B00004U9V2	null	2.0	I bought two of these 8.5 fl oz hand cream, and neither of the dispensers work. The hand cream is wonderful, but very thick, so I don't see I can get much out by shaking it out, since the dispensers seem to be non-operable.	06 15, 2010
B00004U9V2	null	5.0	Believe me, over the years I have tried many, many different hand creams. I am one of those people whose hands get so dry they have little cracks all over them. Of all the hand creams, this is the best. It really moisturizes but doesn't leave your hands feeling greasy. And it lasts. I think a lot of lotions just have too much water in them. It has a very nice, subtle scent. I have to avoid a lot of lotions just because the scent is too strong! I am overall very "frugal" but I think this cream is worth the money.	01 7, 2010

B00005N7P0	null	5.0	for computer enthusiast, MaxPC is a welcome sight in your mailbox. i can remember for years savoring every page of "boot" (as it was called in beginning) as i was (and still am) obcessed with PC's. Anyone, from advanced users - to beginners looking for knowledge - can profit from every issue of MaxPC. the icing on the cake is the subscription that comes with a CD-ROM as it is packed with demos, utilities, and other useful apps (very helpful for those not blessed with broadband connections). Until I discovered the community of hardware enthusiast web sites, MaxPC, formerly "boot", was my only really informative source for computing news and articles. To this day, i consider my subscription to it worth more than 10 subscriptions to most other computing mags. I can't wait until they merge with DVD media and maybe end up offering more info on Divx codecs, encoding your own movies, and best bang for the buck audio and video equipment. Try a few issues (with CD)and you may get hooked...
B00005N7P0	null	5.0	Thank god this is not a Ziff Davis publication. MaxPC will actually tell you if a product is bad. They will print just what they think about something; no sugar coating. I would compare their style to Car and Driver. Technical, but they know how to have a good time.	1
